Quote of the Month

"Not what we say about our blessings, but how we use them, is the true measure of our thanksgiving."

It is the Beginning of the Holiday Season

It is hard to imagine that the year is already coming to a close. There are less than 55 days left until the new year. In between, we have holiday parties, Christmas plays, friends and family visiting, and a lot of baking, shopping, traveling, decorating, cleaning, cooking, and more shopping.

Feeling the pressure? Well, so are your kids. They have mid-terms, report cards, up-coming standardized tests, and many older students are focused on a final chance to improve their SAT scores .

With all of this holiday commotion how are you going to keep your students focused, help complete their holiday-break assignments, study for the SAT, and still do all the fun activities that make the season so great?

A great way to accomplish so many things in such a short time is simply to write them all down. A list helps to make sure you and your students are not overbooked for the holidays .

Another way to help you, help your student during this hectic time, would be through the use of a private tutor. We know kids need the break, and they need to have fun, but the easiest way to help them accomplish their academic goals over the break is to get some help. One of our private tutors will concentrate solely on insuring that even amidst all the hustle bustle of the season, the academic goals set for your student are being met.

If you have not used our services in a while, I want to remind you that we do not have a contract. We do not require a minimum number of hours. You simply use our services as little or as much as you need.
